September 2010	Currently trialling a product called BACS.IP. The product is free for the first year and approx £315 in the second and subsequent years. A successful test submission has been made to BACS with this software. However, continuing research as currently unsure how stable this software is (although it is listed as approved software with BACS) and the level of support we would receive. The cheque printing hardware would cost just less than £2,000.
